

Let's Book It

Finding Sparkle in the Everyday

Meet The Author

On July 2, 2013, Selina opened up her Facebook page and the adventures began. The very first post is the photo that you see here. It is a rarity to see Selina with her natural hair color. She has come a long way since that first post, and we are looking forward to what is to come!

A LITTLE BIT OF HISTORY....

Now for a little bit of history on our resident artist/author.

Selina Elliot was not always her pen name; she started out as just Selina (and she has a book published under that name: "Knight in Shining Armor").

Her humble beginnings in small town Saskatchewan were typical of any child, she played with her friends and went to school. She also watched Saturday morning cartoons and loved to get dirty playing outside (no influence by her big sister at all...)!

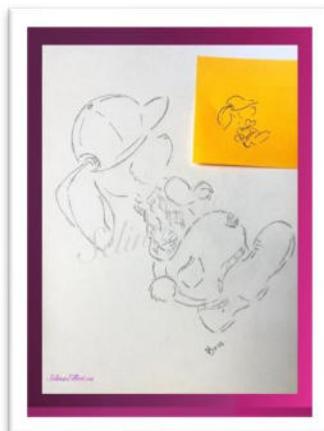

Her first book (to read, not write) was actually not until later in life - almost high school - and it was "Spell for Chameleon" by Piers Anthony. After reading that book, she was hooked and has not put down a book since. She has since found a new favorite "Watership Down" by Richard Adams.

I hope you are excited as we are to see what this up-and-coming artist/author has in store for everyone!

GRATEFUL THAT I TRIED!

Is everything that is broken, trash?

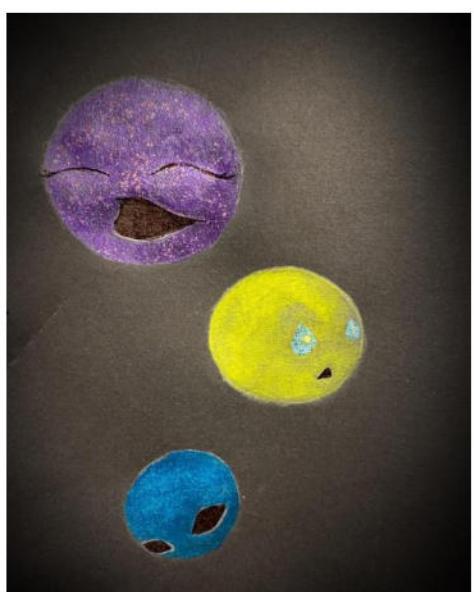

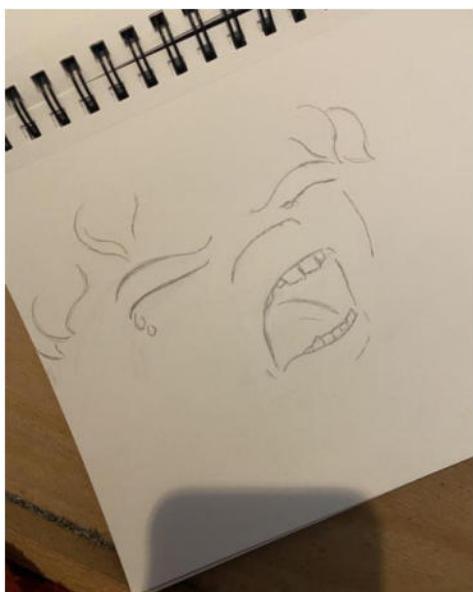

Whether success is in the future, or if it's failure to come, I'm glad that I tried.

This year I wanted to keep challenging myself. After doodling on a sticky note, I spent...
